

COMMONWEALTH HEALTH MINISTERS COMMIT TO TACKLING GLOBAL WORKFORCE CHALLENGES IN HEALTH AND SOCIAL SERVICES

The 36TH Commonwealth Health Ministers Meeting (CHMM) in Geneva on 24-25 May 2024 included a strong focus on the global challenges facing the health and social services workforce, alongside other commitments aiming to provide universal health coverage for all. COSW welcomes these commitments and was pleased to contribute to the ministerial dialogue.

COSW commits to working closely with the Commonwealth Secretariat, member states and accredited organisations on this crucial issue for the future of all peoples and welcomes the proposal to 'create a voluntary Commonwealth Community of Practice for the Health and Care Workforce to share experiences and actionable solutions'.

COSW contributed to the Ministerial break-out session on workforce challenges which resulted in recommendations noted in the CHMM communiqué.

The CHMM was addressed by the Director General of the World Health Organisation. Dr Tedros Ghebreyesus, identified the health and social service workforce crisis as his second priority: 'Let us therefore commit to protecting and investing in the health and care workforce, including in their education, their jobs and their decent work conditions', he said.

Other issues agreed by the CHMM of relevance to social workers include:

- multi-sectoral collaboration as key to effective health care and wellbeing (Para 14);
- urgent need for the health-sector to address the devastating impact of violence against women and girls (Para 11)
- increased burden of mental health conditions, especially among youth (Paras 21/2) – COSW has contributed to Commonwealth webinars on mental health issues;
- need for food security for all (Para 23);
- climate change impacts on health AND wellbeing (Para 24, 61);
- 2022 Kigali Declaration on Childcare and Protection Reform and the importance of delivering quality care for children and young people (Para 34) – COSW is playing a key role through chairing Commonwealth Children's Interest Group (ComCIG);
- develop a roadmap on ageing well (Para 58);
- acknowledge the role of ... Commonwealth accredited organisations and young people in building health system resilience (Para 35;

"COSW successfully ensured that social work and social services remained visible in the discussions of health ministers", observed COSW Main Representative David N Jones after the meeting. "Too often social work is ignored or taken for granted. Partnerships between health, social work and other stakeholders provide essential foundations for overcoming the growing ill-health challenges and social problems affecting our world. Social workers have invaluable experience of the reality of communities which must be heard. COSW is working tirelessly to ensure that the experience of social workers informs Commonwealth policy developments", David Jones promised.
